Policy Summary:

Students who register late into courses that have already started are shown to have a higher withdrawal and failure rate than students who register prior to the beginning of the course. With additional courses starting at varied times in the semester, students have options to register into courses without missing class meetings.

Scope:

Applies to all Jackson College (JC) students and all course enrollments

Definitions:

Add/drop Period: A student may meet with their navigator to discuss options of initiating a course addition up to the day prior to the first meeting of the class (Note: JC staff may manually register students for courses up to the start time of the class). A course drop is allowed up to and including the census date established at ten-percent of the meeting dates for the course (except for full fifteen week courses).

Online Course Start: Online course sections are considered to start at 12:00 am on the first day of the class.

Policy Statement:

JC students, without a current schedule, are not permitted to register for courses that have already started. Students shall be encouraged to register for late start classes.

Students, with a current schedule, may register for courses that have begun if they meet one of the following criteria:

- Instructor permission,
- Section switch, or
- Dean approval for documented extenuating circumstances.
